Orlando, Florida - June 28th, 2019 — Author Amanda Armstrong announces the publication of her debut e-book, TALES FROM THE DARK VOID. This collection contains four stories that feature strong female protagonists in very dangerous worlds of fantasy, supernatural, and horror. It is available on Smashwords.com for $5.00.

“Room with a View” follows Christy on her way back home to the pack. She is in a cheap motel when she gets a call from Jimmy, the local werewolf Alpha. The news is bad, and Christy is left with very few choices.

In “The Mist Runner,” fiery Captain Williams sets out with her pirate crew, one of the few left that sails the increasingly treacherous seas. Risking her ship, her crew, and even her life, she will face more frequent magical storms and rising populations of monstrous creatures, to remain the master of her own fate.

Previously published in THE SCARLETT LEAF REVIEW, "Hunger," is the story of Betsy who is hitchhiking on a backwoods country road. Tad picks her up, but Tad is no good Samaritan, and Betsy is far from an innocent hitchhiker herself.

Included is a sneak peek from Valhalla Falling, a novel in progress. In the mountains of South Carolina, Natalia tried to stop the ancient GODS from returning, but loses the fight and her love. Lucky for her, the Norse Goddess Freya, has other plans than to let her die.

Amanda Armstrong is a blogger, writer and geeky mother of two. She writes in the fantasy, supernatural, sci-fi, and horror genres. She loves reading comics and playing Dungeons & Dragons. She is earning her Bachelor of Fine Arts in creative writing from Full Sail University. Her work has previously appeared in The Scarlet Leaf Review and Exhuming Alexandria.
